Acando delivers SOA platform to Statsbygg in Norway

Statsbygg and Acando have signed an agreement for the delivery of an integration platform based on service oriented architecture (SOA). The platform will support Statsbygg in making information and services available via the internet. The solution is based on open source and is built with components from Sun Microsystems (SUN ESB Suite) and JasperReport from Jaspersoft.

Statsbygg is in an exciting phase that will support a digitization of building information and interaction through all phases of design, construction and building management. Among other things, Statsbygg introduces a standardized Building Information Model (BIM).

"Through this agreement, Acando strengthens its position as Norway's largest provider of solutions based on open source components", says Aasmund Frøseth, Managing Director of Acando Norway.
